International News Service
NEW YORK.—Nat King Cole has been providing TV some of its pleasantest, most tasteful quarter hours for months and it is a comfort indeed to know that instead of dropping through the bottom of his NBC channels, he will extend his TV musicale to a full half hour starting Tuesday night. Nat has been a constantly expert entertainer for years, and has come to a stature in his singing field that transcends "trends." Some more stylized performers shoot higher for brief periods on the basis of a gimmick, or a "sound." Nat's popular jazz feeling is impeccable, his tone creamy and rich and his tricks negligible, if any. He has enough identifiable "style" to make imitating him popular, if not easy, for amid all the comedians and imitators — imitators are the bottom rung of the comic ladder — none have been able to more than amusingly reflect his style. None duplicate it, nor his fine full tone.

Nat has great respect for melody as well as the graceful delicacies of the jazz idiom, and somehow satisfies almost everybody. Only a few singers have been able to rise above transient trends, such as rock-and-roll, or whatever fad threatened to unseat the singing leaders of the past. Frank Sinatra is a jazz purist with little time for the tricks he used at the start of his skyrocket — such as his famous, glissando effect which 15 years ago had the girls swooning.

Now Sinatra is more apt to seek depth of musical importance in a popular tune than to emphasize only the manner in which he sings a song at the young ladies. Bing Crosby and Perry Como have had the same ability to satisfy men and women the jazz-minded and the fiddle-daddies.

Ella Fitzgerald among the ladies of the solo ensemble is the champ of her trade, able to sing anything from ballad to bop in a manner certain to satisfy the fans of both, while meriting the approval of both musicians and the casual clientele.

Sarah Vaughan has so highly stylized an approach, betimes with superb musicianship somewhat far out, beyond the ordinary ear, that she mystifies some folks and angers others. It does little good to note that she is a superb performer; Sarah satisfies her own esoteric whims, and win the high approval of the musicians and the avid modern music fans, but a true Guy Lombardo or Lawrence Welk aficionado—and they're the majority—will go home with furrowed brow and turned-off ear.

Carmen Macrac is a new sound among the feminine pop singers in the finest pure style, the purity of all real art which needs no tricks, no gimmicks. There are lots of others who are able to walk a thin line between popular music and the ridiculous phrasing and foolishness now turning up so consistently on the jukeboxes.

Glass-Like

The glass snake is not a snake, but a legless lizard. It gets its name from the fact that it looks like a snake and its tail breaks off as easily as glass, as well as the fact that it looks as if it were made of glass.

Dulaney Foster, attorney for the McDonnell firm, made the request of the attorney general after appearing before yesterday's Board of Health meeting. He asked, without success, that the effective date be postponed four months — to Nov. 1.
